Integrity Commissioner publishes submission to statutory review into IC Act

21 June 2023

The ACT Integrity Commission has today published its submission to the statutory review into the operation of the Integrity Commission Act 2018 (the IC Act). The full submission is available on the Commission's website.

The submission draws heavily from the Commission's operational experience since its inception in 2019 and makes a series of recommendations on proposed amendments to the IC Act and other legislation, many of which have featured in Commission annual reports from previous years.

Importantly, the Commission has highlighted several areas where changes to the IC Act could, if adopted, lead to improvements in how the Commission undertakes its work, a better experience for those who interact with the Commission, and greater efficacy of the integrity framework for the ACT community.

The review process started earlier this year following the appointment of Mr Ian Govey AM as reviewer. Further information about the review, including its terms of reference, is available on the review website.

The Commission welcomes the opportunity to engage in this important review and looks forward to working with Mr Govey and his team as the review continues.
